Compared to last week: all feeder steers and heifer class averages ended from $3 to $5 lower. Slaughter cows on today's comparison ended fully firm with last week while the slaughter bulls ended from steady to $2.50 lower. Today's lower feeder calf quality played a role in the weakened prices averages.

The weekly slaughter rates continue to get larger but the huge backlog of market ready cattle also continues to grow. Analyst continue to be bearish towards the future as a undertone remains.

Light weight calves were higher this week and the heavier calves were $5 to $7 lower this week. Feed yards are backed and the interest in heavier cattle is lacking. Packer cows and bulls were several dollars higher this week.
