Back to School Success

The start of the school year is an exciting time for many! Research shows that eating a healthy diet and participating in physical activity can help learning skills, attitudes, concentration, and attention which is not only helpful for students in the classroom but adults too. Educators, students, staff, and caretakers are all part of the new school year, and it is important that we practice several healthy back to school habits for a healthy and active school year.

Eat Right!

It is recommended that we eat more fruit and vegetables, whole grains, lean protein, and low-fat dairy while limiting our intake of saturated fats, sodium, added sugars, and refined grains. The National Institutes of Health collected several nutrition and money saving tips that are easy to remember just like our ABCs!

Always use ads and store bonus cards, which may offer discounts on healthy foods like fruits and veggies.

Buy produce in season to cut costs. In Texas we are lucky that we can enjoy a variety of produce all year long!

Compare brands and package sizes to find the best buy. Check the unit price label for the best deal. Be sure to read the Nutrition Facts label and look for lower amounts of saturated fat, sodium, and added sugars.

Get Active!

Young people 6-17 years old should participate in at least 60 minutes of physical activity every day while adults should do at least 150-300 minutes of physical activity every week. Start by keeping track of your family's and your physical activity. Additionally, it is important to note the amount of time you spend sitting and in front of a screen (computer, phone, TV, etc.).

Start small, family activity time can be as easy as prepping healthy meals together to a 15-minute walk after school or before dinner. What activities will you and your family do to stay on track during the school year?
